Women in Safety

The Utah Safety Council has created a Women in Safety group to discuss the issues and challenges facing women in the industry. Women in Safety will bring a unique perspective to the safety industry by providing an opportunity for new topics and open discussions.

Our next meeting on September 28th will feature the President of the National Safety Council, Debbie Hersman. The meeting will start at 11:00 a.m. at the Little America Hotel. Lunch will be provided.

If you are interested in attending, please contact me directly at 801.746.SAFE (7233) or feel free to email me at spistoia@utahsafetycouncil.org.

Safety Through the Ages: 1990s

In 1993, the Click It or Ticket campaign was launched. It was the most successful seat belt enforcement campaign ever. Coast to coast, day or night, the message is simple: Click It or Ticket. Click It or Ticket allows law enforcement officers to issue safety belt violations without observing other offenses.

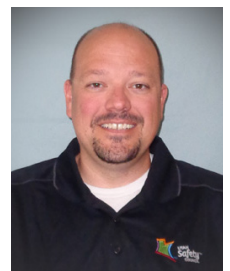

The objectives for this campaign were simple and effective:

- Increase seat belt usage
- Decrease highway injuries and economic costs
- Increase enforcement of auto-related crimes
- Change attitudes

From 1993 to 2015, seat belt usage in the United States increased by 22% (from 66% on average to 88%). Still in effect as the primary seat belt law, the Click It or Ticket campaign has become a model for both state and national enforcement programs across the country.

About our Staff

Greg Royall recently joined the Utah Safety Council family as our new Traffic Safety Program Manager. Greg has been in public service since the early 90s as a former police officer and volunteer firefighter/EMT.

Greg is married with three children and makes his home in Heber City. He loves the small-town feeling of knowing your neighbors and having a place to get out of the hustle and bustle of the city. When he isn't working, you will find him and his family camping and riding ATVs. Greg loves to cook and is well-known in his community for his awesome smoked meats and BBQ.

Feel free to reach out to Greg at groyall@utahsafetycouncil.org.

Bloodborne Pathogens Standard

In 1991, OSHA introduced the Bloodborne Pathogens Standard to protect 5.6 million exposed workers from HIV and Hepatitis B. These regulations resulted in a dramatic reduction of Hepatitis B infections among health-care workers.

Today, OSHA requires employers to protect their employees who have a reasonably anticipated, occupational exposure to blood or other potentially infectious materials. According to OSHA Standard 29 CFR 1910.1030, those employees need Bloodborne Pathogens training annually.

Bloodborne Pathogens training is ideal for a variety of occupations, especially:

- First responders and employees trained in First Aid/CPR/AED
- Dental assistants and healthcare professionals
- Teachers, coaches, and school personnel
- Custodians, hotel housekeepers, and hospitality workers

National Safety Council's Bloodborne Pathogens program exceeds the OSHA standard by including a section for airborne pathogens. This training helps workers protect themselves against illnesses that can result in a debilitating disease.

Anyone can become certified to teach Bloodborne and Airborne Pathogens training- there are no prerequisites required to become an instructor. For more information about Bloodborne Pathogens training at the Utah Safety Council, please contact Cassie Henson at 801.746.SAFE (7233) or email chenson@utahsafetycouncil.org.

Back to School Safety Tips

More kids are hit by cars near schools than at any other location.

Here are some quick tips to keep you and your family safe this school year:

- Always stand at least 6 feet from the curb when waiting for the bus.
- Never block a crosswalk or load/unload children across from the school.
- Watch for bike riders coming from driveways, behind parked cars, and school zones.

Find more tips at UTAHSAFETYCOUNCIL.ORG under the Home and Community section.

Do You Understand OSHA's Forklift Regulations?

In 1999, OSHA updated the 29 CFR 1910.178 regulation governing Powered Industrial Trucks, which includes forklifts. These regulations deal with how forklift operator training should be conducted. If you have a forklift at your worksite, it is important to remember that OSHA requires forklift training to have three basic components:

1. Formal Instruction - This can be done in a variety of forms, such as a lecture, video instruction, interactive computer learning, a discussion, or written material.
2. Practical Hands-On training - This portion should include demonstrations done on the forklift by the trainer and then practice exercises performed by the trainee.
3. Evaluation - The trainer then does a formal evaluation of the competency and skill of the forklift operator. After passing this evaluation, re-evaluations should be done every 3 years or more often if circumstances require.

And don't forget, all training and evaluations must be conducted by someone who is certified to do so. The end goal is a safer working environment for those who operate or work nearby forklifts.

Need help finding a trainer? You can train one of your own with the Forklift Trainer Certification course coming up on August 8th. Looking to build your resume and receive formal instruction? Come to our Forklift Operator course on August 26th. Register online at UTAHSAFETYCOUNCIL.ORG.
